Here are a dozen super fun games to introduce pickleball concepts to children and under:

1. Pickleball Tag

This game is a great way to get kids moving and learning the basics of pickleball. To play, simply divide the kids into two teams and give each team a pickleball paddle. One team is the "chasers" and the other team is the "runners." The chasers try to hit the runners with the pickleballs, and the runners try to avoid getting hit. The game ends when all of the runners have been hit.

2. Pickleball Hot Potato

This game is a fun way to practice hand-eye coordination and reaction time. To play, simply sit the kids in a circle and give them a pickleball. Start the music and pass the pickleball around the circle. When the music stops, the child holding the pickleball is out. The game continues until only one child is left.

3. Pickleball Bowling

This game is a great way to practice aiming and hitting the ball. To play, simply set up ten empty water bottles or cones in a triangle formation. Then, give the kids a pickleball and have them take turns trying to knock down the bottles. The child who knocks down the most bottles wins.

4. Pickleball Golf

This game is a fun way to practice putting and chipping. To play, simply set up a few obstacles on the ground, such as cones or chairs. Then, give the kids a pickleball and have them take turns trying to putt or chip the ball around the obstacles and into a hole. The child who gets the ball into the hole in the fewest strokes wins.

5. Pickleball Simon Says

This game is a great way to practice listening skills and following directions. To play, simply give the kids a pickleball and have them stand in a circle. Then, give them a series of commands, such as "Simon says touch your toes" or "Simon says jump up and down." The kids should only follow the commands that start with "Simon says." The child who makes the most mistakes is out.

6. Pickleball Red Light, Green Light

This game is a fun way to practice reaction time and following directions. To play, simply stand at one end of the playing area and have the kids stand at the other end. Call out "green light" and the kids can start walking towards you. When you call out "red light," the kids must stop moving. Any child who moves when you call out "red light" is out. The first child to reach you wins.

7. Pickleball Freeze Dance

This game is a fun way to practice listening skills and coordination. To play, simply put on some music and have the kids dance around. When the music stops, the kids must freeze in place. Any child who moves after the music stops is out. The last child to remain frozen wins.

8. Pickleball Musical Squares

This game is a fun way to practice counting and coordination. To play, simply draw a grid of squares on the ground. Then, put on some music and have the kids walk around the squares. When the music stops, the kids must find a square to stand in. Any child who does not find a square is out. The game continues until only one child is left.

9. Pickleball Charades

This game is a fun way to practice communication skills and creativity. To play, simply write down a list of pickleball-related words or phrases. Then, divide the kids into teams and have them take turns acting out the words or phrases for their team to guess. The team with the most correct guesses wins.

10. Pickleball Pictionary

This game is a fun way to practice drawing skills and communication skills. To play, simply write down a list of pickleball-related words or phrases. Then, divide the kids into teams and have them take turns drawing the words or phrases for their team to guess. The team with the most correct guesses wins.

11. Pickleball Bingo

This game is a fun way to practice listening skills and vocabulary. To play, simply create a bingo card with pickleball-related words or phrases. Then, call out the words or phrases and have the kids mark off the corresponding squares on their bingo cards. The first child to mark off all of the squares on their bingo card wins.

12. Pickleball Trivia

This game is a fun way to test your knowledge of pickleball. To play, simply print out a list of pickleball trivia questions. Then, divide the kids into teams and have them take turns answering the questions. The team with the most correct answers wins.

These are just a few of the many fun games that you can use to introduce pickleball concepts to children and under. With a little creativity, you can come up with even more games that will help kids learn the basics of pickleball and have a blast at the same time.
